CFL Stamps back in swing

Calgary Stampeders Dwight Anderson tackles Edmonton Eskimo Jamaica Rector during first-half CFL pre-season action in Edmonton yesterday. The Stampeders won 23-21. Story, page 12.

Police probing suspicious death

CRIME Police are looking for clues as to how a 61-year-old Calgary grandmother, who was reported missing on Saturday, was found near death under her basement stairs later that night.

The woman later passed away in hospital. Police initially searched the neighbourhood for Guifen Liu when she was reported missing from her home in the 300 block of Varsity Estates Grove NW on Saturday afternoon by a family member.

Duty Insp. Keith Cain said a large-scale search was underway when the woman was found underneath the stairs of her home by a family member. "She was found in medical distress and was transferred to hospital where she died from her injuries," Larson said.

Homicide investigators were on scene yesterday but police are remaining tight-lipped until autopsy results are completed this week.

"We don't really have a lot of information at this point," Cain said, but he added the death is being investigated as suspicious. Neighbours in this north-west community were surprised by the news.

"This is a quiet neighbourhood. I don't know who would do something like that," one neighbour said.

Landslide hits homes

No fatalities after 5 residences destroyed, officials say

A landslide in southern British Columbia that struck several homes with a massive wall of mud, rocks and debris does not appear to have claimed any lives, officials confirmed late yesterday.

Allan Patton, regional director with the District of Okanagan-Similkameen, said searchers have accounted for all the residents who it's believed were living in the homes affected. "Somebody might be walking a dog or something that we don't know about, but as far as the residents in the area are (concerned), there's no issues there, nobody's been hurt," Patton

"The roar was deafening. When we left, there were still trees going over (Highway) 97."

James Cambridge, resident told The Canadian Press. Damage estimates varied wildly in the hours after the slide hit, but RCMP said approximately five homes were struck at about 2:20 p.m. local time near Testalinden Creek, just south of Oliver, B.C. Patton said the homes that were hit were destroyed.

"Walls down, unsalvageable."

James Cambridge, a 46-year-old area resident, described seeing a wall of mud suddenly racing down the hill toward his home.

"Something let go up in the hills and this wall of mud came roaring down and took out our shop and buried a couple of cars on our property," he told The Canadian Press.

"The roar was deafening. When we left, there were still trees going over (Highway) 97."

Patton said that deafening noise may have given residents just enough of a warning to get out.

He said between 25 and 30 homes neighbouring the slide area had been put on evacuation alert.

RCMP said a mountain slope on the western side of the valley gave out, destroying several homes and structures before burying the highway and spilling into the creek. The highway was buried under eight to 12 feet of mud.

While too early to know what triggered the slide, Patton said the area has been hit by heavy rain in recent days.

"We had more rain than we're used to," he said.

More than horses at Spruce Meadows

KATIE TURNER

While the Spruce Meadows National Tournament came to a close yesterday, the facility has plenty to offer for the rest of the summer during its 35th anniversary season.

The National is the kickoff of events to come, said Ian Allison, vice-president of media services. "There's about 1,000 horses at Spruce Meadows now for the next five weeks from 16 countries," he said.

"If you're to compare it to golf, this is the first of the majors." Although Spruce Meadows is known for its world-class equestrian events, Allison said they offer much more than just horses.

Canoers 'lucky' no one injured after falling into Elbow River

Fire battalion Chief Kevin Haines

Kevin Haines said the canoe occupants made it safely to shore on their own when the canoe struck the bridge on 25th

"It's a hazard for anyone else in the water so we couldn't leave it there, but everyone and everything was safe once we got it out," Haines said.

WASTE A church parking lot turned into a makeshift garbage dump and recycling depot brought community members together yesterday.

More than 125 volunteers from the Calgary East Church of the Nazarene and the Penbrooke Community Association, along with Ald. "Our intention is to connect to the community on a grassroots level," said Buhllar. "There are people here who may not feel connected and we want to give them a sense of community

Pastor Doug Webb of the Calgary East Church of the Nazarene said the cleanup is not only about removing waste and garbage: "We want to build a relationship with people and get to know our neighbors."

Neighbours filled three large garbage bins with everything from old carpets to gasoline engines. Reusable items will be donated to causes in the Congo. Metal scraps, cardboard and electronics will be recycled.

Thousands march for diabetes cure

Walk breaks fundraising goal with over $400K

Jenna Anderson knows what it's like to live with diabetes, and that's why it meant so much to her to see more than 2,000 people walk for a cure yesterday.

A dozen of Anderson's closest friends and family members showed their support by walking five kilometres with her for the Telus Walk to Cure Diabetes at Stanley Park, helping contribute to a record-breaking $413,179 fundraising tally.

"It means so much to me for my friends and family to come here with me and walk. It definitely makes a difference," the teen said.

"It's a really nice day to spend with friends and family."

Shelley Swirski, regional manager of the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, was overcome with emotion at the outpouring of support in breaking the fundraising goal.

"It's overwhelming to see so many people out here with their friends and family. It's a tremendous turnout, I think our best ever," Swirski said. "It's a tremendous effort in finding a cure for a disease that touches so many lives."

FIRE Damage is estimated at $20,000 in a house fire that was started in the kitchen of a northwest Calgary home yesterday afternoon. According to fire officials, the blaze started in a home in the 200 block of Sandpiper Place NW around 3:30 p.m. Firefighters were able to extinguish the fire quickly. The occupants made it out safely and have been advised to remain out of the home for 24 hours due to gases produced by the fire.

BUST District 2 officers, on tips from the public, dismantled a grow-op in the city's southwest Friday. Approximately 1,000 plants, with a street value of $1.25 million, were seized by police after a raid on a home in the 0-100 block of Discovery Ridge Hill SW. Officers also located samurai swords at the address. Because of damage from the grow-op, police said the home would likely be condemned. Charges have yet to be laid.

OFFICERS One hundred sixty-five police officers from the Calgary Police Service will be attending the G20 summit in Toronto later this month, as a part of the largest-ever Canadian security operation. # Walkers aim to ease poverty

About 5,000 raise $900K for sustainable development overseas

Mayor Dave Bronconnier cuts the ribbon for the 26th annual World Partnership Walk in Prince's Island Park.

Thousands of Calgarians took steps towards the solution to global poverty yesterday during the World Partnership Walk in Prince's Island Park.

Now in its 26th year, the walk is an initiative of the Aga Khan Foundation of Canada and raises funds which go directly towards sustainable development in Asia, Africa and the Middle East, said long-time volunteer and spokesperson Rehana Rajabali.

"Over the last 25 years across the country, $50 million has been raised," she said, adding that 100 per cent of the profits go towards the overseas projects. Rajabali said she has

Parade kicks off centenary festivities

CHINESE HERITAGE Vibrantly coloured Chinese lions danced through Calgary's downtown core during the Chinese Centenary Celebration Parade yesterday.

Members of the Calgary-based Jing Wo Lion Dance Team both frightened and awed young spectators as they passed. Established in 1980, the group has grown from five to over 25 members.

The group of volunteer dancers ranges in age from six years to those in their mid-20s.

Not only do they dance for special events, but they ensure that Calgary youth get to experience Chinese culture.

Anne Mah, 3, stared speechless as the lions jumped in front of her. According to her mother, Jenny Mah, the parade is a chance for her children to experience their culture.

"Although we are Canadian, we need to cherish our heritage," she said.

Chinatown's 100th anniversary celebrations kicked off with the parade along with an afternoon of entertainment. Calgary has Canada's third largest Chinese population, after Toronto and Vancouver, and Chinatown has been a core part of the city since 1910.

According to Ed Tam, co-chairman of the Calgary Chinatown Centennial Celebration Committee, approximately 1,000 participants took part in the celebrations. Over 30 associations including martial arts schools, marching bands, dance groups and various VIPs attended the event.

First-time Betty's Run participant Allison MacGregor said she was running "every step" for her neighbour and family friend who lost his battle to ALS.

"So I think if there's one way to remember people that have had ALS it's just coming out to an event like this," said MacGregor.

Kelly Eaton, Betty's daughter, said the support for the event has only grown over the years.

Sewage left in cities: Study

Far more sewage has been spilled in Canadian urban centres over the last six years than any other harmful contaminant, newly released figures show.

This never-before-released information has been kept in a classified government database called NEMISIS.

The acronym stands for National Enforcement Management Information System and Intelligence System.

Federal enforcement officers use the database to go after polluters.

It took The Canadian Press two years and a complaint to the information commissioner to pry the data from Environment Canada under the Access to Information Act.

The news agency then

Bonnybrook biggest

• The largest spill was at Calgary's Bonnybrook wastewater treatment plant, which handles much of the city's sewage. The database says a storm and flood led to a 300-million-litre sewage spill on June 17, 2005. Heavy floods hammered southern Alberta that spring. Edith Phillips of Calgary's regulatory affairs branch said the floodwater overwhelmed the city's sewers and treatment plants. She said the flooding damaged ultra-violet lights used to kill bacteria, so treated wastewater flowed into the Bow River.

created its own spills database using the government information, which covers the period from January 2004 to this past April.

The analysis looked at spills in 18 cities and metropolitan areas across 10 provinces.

They include the metropolitan areas of Toronto, Vancouver and Montreal, and the cities of Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Ottawa, Hamilton, Windsor, Ont., Quebec City, Fredericton, Moncton, N.B., Saint John, N.B., Charlottetown, Halifax and St. John's, N.L.

The database lists 6,555 spills in those parts of the country since 2004.

Some spills are minor, while others run over hundreds of millions of litres.

The most frequently spilled contaminants are petroleum products. They account for 3,596 spills, or about 55 per cent of all entries.

The database contains 538 sewage spills. That's eight per cent of all spills in the database. While sewage doesn't appear as often as other contaminants, more of it is spilled each time.

Squabbling feds get little done

POLITICS One of the most unproductive sittings in Canadian legislative history is sputtering to an end.

MPs are preparing to head home for the summer, having spent six months locked in furious debate over the vital role federal Parliament should play in a healthy democracy.

But amid all the wrangling and rancour, there's little sign that Parliament has actually done much work. And there's little hope for improvement when Parliament resumes in the fall after a 12-week hiatus.

Consider the record of accomplishment so far this year: As of today, only two appropriation bills — important but routine pieces of legislation that ensure the government has money to operate — have received royal assent after winning approval from both the House of Commons and Senate.

A handful more — including an all-party brokered compromise on refugee reforms and a massive, omnibus budget implementation bill — might yet become law in a last-minute flurry of activity.

Plenty of quirky items up for bids on Ottawa's auction site

Who wants to buy some superhero pyjamas? What about a diamond ring or a damaged car? Underwear? Going once, going twice, sold! — by the Canadian government.

An online auction site run by the federal department of public works is a treasure trove of seized and surplus goods sold to the highest bidder with a credit card for bargain prices.

The government launched its online auction site in January 2009 in order to boost sales by reaching a broader audience than through the traditional auctions it had previously relied on.

A spokeswoman for the public works department said the site generated roughly $14 million in sales last fiscal year and a quick perusal of the list of goods on offer reveals the money is being spent on more than just office furniture.

Recent browsing has revealed musical instruments — including a tuba and a set of harmonicas — diamond-studded jewellery going for far less than the appraised fair market value, a wine opener kit, a hair clipper set, a Cartier watch and a 1994 Lincoln Town Car to be sold only for parts.

The public works spokeswoman was unable to say who ended up buying them or even why they were being sold.

"Due to privacy laws, the identity of all (auction site) buyers is protected," Tricia Van Der Griest wrote in an email. "Public Works and Government Services) acts as a sales agent on behalf of the client departments and agencies and does not ask for or record the reasons for forfeiture or sale."

She said the damaged vehicles are leftovers from Transport Canada safety tests and the jewellery has been seized either by the Canada Border Services Agency, or confiscated by the public works department as the proceeds of crime, but since most items don't list which department or agency is doing the selling, it's impossible to learn the back story to nearly all other types of goods.

The website has replaced traditional auctions but the public works department has yet to achieve its goal of moving beyond a "closed" bidding system, which does not post the highest bid until the auction has closed.

Canadian military lawyer to oversee flotilla raid inquiry

GAZA Israel has asked Canada's former top military lawyer to help investigate its attack on a Gaza-bound aid flotilla.

A statement from the Israel government says one of two foreign observers for a proposed inquiry would be retired Brig.-Gen. Ken Watkin, Canada's former judge advocate general.

Watkin served as a Canadian Forces legal officer for more than 25 years and has been involved in various inquiries arising from the 1994 genocide in Rwanda.

He also served as legal advisor to an inquiry that was set up after the brutal killing of a teenager at the hands of Canadian soldiers in Somalia in 1993.

Watkin is also known for his involvement in the Afghan detainee transfer issue currently boiling over on Parliament Hill.

100 dead, shoot-to-kill order in Kyrgyzstan

Mobs of rioters slaughtered Uzbeks and burned their homes and businesses in Kyrgyzstan's worst ethnic violence in decades, sending more than 75,000 members of the ethnic minority fleeing the country in attacks that appeared aimed at undermining the Central Asian nation's new interim government.

More than 100 people were killed in southern Kyrgyzstan and more than 1,200 wounded in days of attacks, according to government estimates yesterday. The true toll may be much higher.

The International Committee of the Red Cross said its delegates witnessed about 100 bodies being buried in just one cemetery, and noted that the official toll is unlikely to include bodies still lying in the streets.

Fires set by rioters raged across Osh, the second-largest city in Kyrgyzstan, as triumphant crowds of ethnic-majority Kyrgyz men took control. Police or military troops were nowhere to be seen in the city of 250,000, where food was scarce after widespread looting and the few Uzbeks still left barricaded themselves in their neighbourhoods.

The rampages spread quickly to Jalal-Abad, another major southern city 70 kilometres from Osh, and its neighbouring villages, as mobs methodically set Uzbek houses, stores and cafés on fire. Rioters seized an armoured vehicle and automatic weapons at a local military unit and attacked police stations around the region trying to get more firearms.

Some refugees were fired on as they fled to Uzbekistan. They were mostly elderly people, women and children, with younger men staying behind to defend their property.

Many of the more than 75,000 refugees arrived with gunshot wounds, the Uzbekistan Emergencies Ministry said, according to Russian reports.

"We saw lots of dead. I saw one guy die after being shot in the chest," said Ziyeda Akhmedova, an Uzbek woman in her 20s at one of several camps hastily set up in Uzbekistan along the border.

A government order for troops to shoot rioters dead failed to stop the spiraling violence.

Worth mentioning

Footy fever may slow productivity

Even down on the Toronto stock market floor, amid a flurry of multimillion-dollar trades, the TVs are tuned into the World Cup.

It's just one effect of the planet's biggest sports tournament, a month-long phenomenon that a U.K. study suggests could cost billions in lost productivity around the world.

Others challenge the notion. They argue the World Cup could actually benefit some economies — depending on which team wins and how much fans shell out for the celebration.

While there may be a debate about the economic bottom line, there is no disputing the soccer frenzy sweeping across workplaces as people around the world return to the office today.

In Honduras, the government is giving 200,000 public employees time off during the tournament to watch the national team play. Politicians have even urged private businesses to follow their lead.

In Canada, a senior strategist for TD predicted international productivity would dip during World Cup matches.

Millan Mulraine couldn't think of any empirical research done on the topic, but last Friday, with many TVs on the Toronto trading floor showing soccer, he expressed confidence about his hunch.

"In this environment, normally you would be watching business news," Mulraine said.

"But given that the World Cup is on now live, I think that's what everyone's tuned into ... even at work.

"I've taken a few glances at it while working, so I can testify to the fact that, yes, productivity will likely decline during events."

A director at Scotia Capital in Toronto told the Wall Street Journal that many traders took Friday off to watch the start of the tournament. The paper reported that during Friday's games the New York trading volume was at its lowest point in two months.

In the soccer-mad U.K., more than 50 per cent of 687 managers surveyed last month by the Chartered Management Institute worry their employees may be distracted by discussions about the World Cup.

The institute estimates that lost hours of productivity could cost more than $1.4 billion — to the British economy alone.

But opinion is mixed.

Latest computer viruses require no clicking

It used to be that computer users could mostly avoid viruses by being careful about which email attachments they opened, or avoiding file-sharing services.

Now you can catch a nasty virus by simply loading a web page.

Last week, the websites of the Wall Street Journal, Jerusalem Post and a Montreal music venue were among many across the Net that were infected with a virus, which may have been passed on to visitors.

Those infected were hit by what's called a drive-by download, a form of virus that sneaks through cracks in a website's servers and then tries to hit visitors when they load the site.

"It happens in the background and unless you have monitoring tools that are inspecting what's going on, or have a bit of a security background, you get hit," said Jerome Segura, a web security researcher for Victoria-based ParetoLogic.

"It happens instantly, it's a matter of seconds."

And it's not just a problem for users who frequent shady sites on the web — hackers are looking to embed the viruses on any and all websites that are vulnerable to their tactics.

"Once there were known bad sites you should not visit, or known adult sites that you should avoid," said Segura.

"Nowadays, legit sites are getting hacked and the more popular the site, the more attractive it is for hackers because they're guaranteed to have a big infection base."

Often, the virus is hidden in an Adobe Flash application or a PDF file. Adobe was forced to release an update to its Flash player Thursday to patch security holes and stop the spread of drive-by downloads.

Infected users may be tipped off to a virus on their computer if they repeatedly get pop ups advertising for anti-virus software. Those ads are a scam to get credit card numbers.

Listeria concerns prompt recall

FOOD A Winnipeg food processor is recalling its pre-cooked meat products after an Alberta customer raised concerns about possible contamination with listeria bacteria.

Smith's Quality Meats, which sells in provinces from British Columbia to Ontario, has voluntarily pulled a wide variety of its products from shelves. "All cooked products are in the process of being removed from store shelves," Smith's spokesman Andy Van Patter said in a release.

The recalls affect meat products with best-before dates between June 11 and Sept. 3. The products include salami, wieners, garlic sausage and roast beef.

"The discovery was made on one product at one location in Alberta through testing performed by our customer," said Van Patter. "There (is) no indication that other products are affected."

Listeria

• Listeria can cause fever, headaches and nausea, and children and pregnant women are considered particularly at risk.

There have been no reported illnesses from eating the products. "That being said, in light of what has happened in this industry over the last couple of years it is only prudent for us to recall all of our cooked products as a precaution," Van Patter said.

The Canadian Food Inspection Agency is monitoring the recall.

In 2008, 23 people died across Canada — including one added to the toll in April when the cause of a Saskatchewan death was retroactively amended — after eating deli meats contaminated with listeria from Maple Leaf Foods, triggering the largest meat recall in Canadian history.

Feds miss target on real estate

Managers of the federal government's massive real-estate portfolio have again fallen short of their performance targets, says an internal report.

Vacancy rates remained stubbornly high, maintenance costs rose significantly and the government's return on investment was anemic — raising questions about the business savvy of federal bureaucrats.

The findings are contained in Public Works' so-called Asset Report Card for 2008-2009, a draft copy of which was obtained by The Canadian Press under the Access to Information Act.

The new report shows the average vacancy rate in federal office buildings was 4.6 per cent — an improvement of half a point from the previous year but still far from the target of 3.5 per cent or less.

The document is an annual accounting of how efficiently the government manages the 353 buildings it owns across the country, including 233 Crown-owned office buildings. Most of the offices are in the Ottawa area.

Public Works' real property branch was restructured in 2007 to more closely align real-estate operations with those of commercial landlords.

Eco-habits are made with good intentions, but survey shows some are bad from the start

BEN KNIGHT
for Metro Canada

A sweeping new survey of Canadian environmental habits reveals most Canadians aren't as green as they think they are.

The second annual Green Gap Index highlights striking differences between what we say we do, and how we actually behave.

It also concludes that this perception gap is growing.

"Canadians have a great desire to be green, but they are struggling," says Nick Cowling, vice-president of Optimum Public Relations, which co-conducted the survey.

"They are looking for more guidance from the corporations, brands, government and employers."

• See survey results at www.summerhillgroup.ca/greengap/2010May31\_Green\_Gap\_Index.pdf

Energy use

Where we're wrong: A smaller gap here. The survey says Canadians have greater awareness of energy efficiency, but only participate in actions that do not require any real change or effort in their existing behaviours.

How we can improve:

Cowling says we're already doing it. "Almost three-quarters of Canadians said they are using less energy than they did last year," he notes. "I think that's because this is an area that has a big effect on their wallets. Energy efficiency has been the fastest transition — because people can save money."

How many reusable mugs did you see at Starbucks today?

Consumer habits

Where we're wrong: "Seven out of 10 Canadians said they use a reusable drinking container all or most of the time," Cowling notes. "And yet, if you're in line at the Starbucks or Tim Hortons, no one's holding one."

How we can improve: Reusable cups! Also, Cowling sees some interesting disconnects in Canadian buying habits. "A strong majority of Canadians — 80 per cent — will donate clothing or other things," he says. "But less than 20 per cent ... buy gently used goods."

Seven out of 10 people say they reuse a mug.

Fuel efficiency

Where we're wrong: The survey says 85 per cent of Canadian drivers believe they are driving fuel-efficient cars — ones that burn no more than 8.3 litres of gasoline per 100 kilometres.

The problem? There simply aren't that many fuel-efficient vehicles on our roads.

How we can improve: "About 50 per cent are opting for public transportation instead of driving, and it's a much younger demographic," Cowling says.

"Canadians don't tend to look at things that are a bit more of a financial stretch, like buying carbon offsets when you do air travel. Twelve per cent, or less, consider it."

Big or small, few cars are fuel-efficient.

Arctic shows first and worst of it

Ocean acidification takes priority for group of scientists

JESSICA CARLSON
Metro World News

STUDY Brrr! An international research group has just reached the Arctic, with the aim of conducting the largest study so far of ocean acidification, which is another threat to the delicate marine life, especially in cold waters.

The research is still in its infancy, but the main cause is identified: Climate change.

"We know that ocean acidification is real. The part of the research that is in its infancy is what effect it has on the calcifying marine organisms, including corals, shellfish and marine plankton — the basis of many marine organisms," says Dr. David Santillo, at the Greenpeace Research Laboratories at the University of Exeter.

The expedition to Svalbard, 1,200 kilometres from the North Pole, is led by scientists from the German marine research institute IFM-GEOMAR. Researchers from nine countries will take part.

Greenpeace contributes transportation, by taking scientists and equipment on their ship Esperanza.

"The effects of ocean acidification can be seen worldwide, but if you want to study the first and the worst effects, you want to go to the Arctic," says Santillo. "The colder water absorbs CO2 more quickly."

Oceans have an invaluable role in regulating CO2 levels. A large part of the CO2 emissions are absorbed by the oceans and dissolved into a weak acid. Gradually, this has made the normally alkaline ocean waters more acidic.

Since the beginning of industrialization, the acidification has risen by 30 per cent — very quickly, in ocean terms. "The oceans are naturally slightly alkaline and have been very stable for many years. Any small change in acidity has dramatic effects because so many shell-building organisms in the ocean rely on a near-neutral pH level. An increase of acidity is an additional stress on top of climate change and pollution," says Santillo.

Stamps 23 Eskimos 21

Quarterback Zac Champion's one-yard plunge with 1:47 remaining gave the Calgary Stampeders a 23-21 CFL exhibition victory over the Edmonton Eskimos last night in the first-ever game played on artificial turf at Commonwealth Stadium.

It was the first pre-season match for both teams.

Edmonton got on the board on its first possession following a 49-yard punt return by Skyler Green to the Calgary 34. Eskimos quarterback Ricky Ray capped off the drive with a 20-yard toss into the end zone to Jason Barnes.

It remained 7-0 until nine minutes into the second quarter, when the Stampeders kicked a 22-yard field goal by Rob Maver after a long drive engineered by quarterback Drew Tate sputtered out.

Calgary took the lead with less than two minutes remaining as the Stamps third quarterback on the night, Champion, scored on a one-yard plunge after Edmonton had been called for pass interference in the end zone. The two-point convert attempt failed leaving Calgary up by one, 22-21.

Maver added a punt single to close out the game.

Both teams wrap up the pre-season next Sunday as the Stampeders host the Saskatchewan Roughriders and the Eskimos travel to B.C.

Celtics grab lead

(Celtics lead series 3-2)

Lakers 86 Celtics 92

It's looking a lot like 2008 again, with Paul Pierce carrying the Boston Celtics to victory in the NBA finals and leading them to the brink of yet another title.

Pierce scored 27 points — his best performance of this year's final — and the Celtics withstood 38 points from Kobe Bryant to beat the defending NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers 92-86 last night and take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Game 6 is tomorrow night in Los Angeles, and a victory then or in Game 7 in L.A. on Thursday would give the Celtics a record 18th NBA title.

The Celtics have never blown a 3-2 lead in the NBA finals.

"You don't want to go out to LA down 3-2. It was our biggest game of the year," Pierce said. "We're in a good spot. We have two games in L.A.; now we have to get one."

Pierce was the MVP of the '08 final, when the new Big Three beat the Lakers to raise an NBA-record 17th banner to the rafters at Boston's TD Garden. Bryant was the finals MVP last year, when the Lakers beat the Orlando Magic to win their 15th championship.

"I wasn't in a personal duel," Pierce said. "I didn't notice that we were going back-and-forth scoring at the time. He's a tough player. He makes shots."

Bryant outscored Pierce this time, but the Lakers guard got little help from his teammates. And the stretch where he was most dominant was also the time when the Celtics pulled away.

Lakers coach Phil Jackson defended Bryant's attempts to take over the offence.

"He's the kind of guy

Boston Celtic Paul Pierce attempts a shot against Los Angeles Laker Kobe Bryant last night in Boston.

(where) you ride the hot hand, that's for sure," Jackson said. "We were waiting for him to do that ... He went out there and found a rhythm."

With the "Beat LA!" chant reverberating at the Garden, Kevin Garnett scored 18 points with 10 rebounds and Rajon Rondo had 18 points, eight assists and five rebounds to help Boston become the first team in the series to win two games in a row. If Los Angeles can't do the same at home, the Celtics will improve to 10-2 against them in the finals dating back to a 4-0 sweep over the Minneapolis Lakers in 1959.

"It's basically home-court," Jackson said. "That's the way it's supposed to be, isn't it?"

Bryant did everything he could to send the Lakers home with the edge.

He scored 23 straight Lakers points between the 4:23 mark of the second quarter until there was 2:16 left in the third. But over that span, the Celtics expanded the lead from one point to 13.

Vancouver loss may mean end for Liddell

UFC What could be the first in a long run of UFC cards in Vancouver was probably the last fight of Chuck (the Iceman) Liddell's legendary career.

Dana White, the UFC president, was thrilled with the support Vancouver showed for UFC 115 Saturday night and plans to return to the West Coast. A sold-out crowd of 17,000 at GM Place produced a gate of $4.2 million US.

"We will definitely be back," proclaimed White. "No doubt about it."

The excitement the charismatic White felt about the Vancouver debut was tempered by a sense of remorse that Liddell's career probably ended when he was knocked out by Rich (Ace) Franklin with just five seconds left in the first round of their light heavyweight main event.

Slovenia slips by Algeria for first World Cup win

GROUP C RESULTS

Slovenia 1 Algeria 0

SOCCER Hey England and America, look who's on top of your World Cup group. Little Slovenia!

Robert Koren scored a late goal Sunday to give Slovenia a 1-0 win over 10-man Algeria in the teams' tournament opener, putting the World Cup's smallest nation ahead of the United States and England in Group C.

The Slovenian captain struck a long-range shot Algeria goalkeeper Fawzi Chouachi misjudged and allowed into the net in the 79th minute.

"I was just lucky to see it go in like that," Koren said. Algerian coach Rabah Saadane said the new World Cup ball was a challenge for goalkeepers.

"Everyone saw what happened with the ball, and what happened yesterday with England's goalkeeper," Saadane said.

"You have to adjust to the flight of the ball." It was the first World Cup victory for Slovenia. The Balkan country lost all three of its matches in the 2002 tournament.

Germany 4 Australia 0

For one night, the Beautiful Game belonged to Germany.

Known more as a methodical team than a creative one, the Germans scored several lovely goals last night in a 4-0 rout of Australia.

Germany scored twice in each half and Tim Cahill was sent off as the three-time champion surged to the top of Group D at the World Cup.

Lukas Podolski and Miroslav Klose scored in the first 30 minutes as

Strong starts

Germany has not lost an opener in the World Cup since a 2-1 defeat in 1982 against Algeria.

Australia coach Pim Verbeek's defensive tactics backfired, and Thomas Mueller and Cacau added the others against an overwhelmed Australian defense.

"We earned respect for ourselves," Klose said. "It was hugely important to win the first game, but nothing is won yet. We're a young team and we have fun playing."

Cahill was red-carded in the 56th minute for a late challenge on Bastian

Schweinsteiger.

The dominant win, played in front of 62,660 fans at the Moses Mabhida Stadium, came without injured captain Michael Ballack.

"I think the way we set up our attacks is something we've been working on intensively," Germany coach Joachim Loew said. "But we've also worked on how we play off the ball — to move into unused space. We were very good on the ball tonight, and we created beautiful goals."

Australia now has a mountain to climb if it is to move on, especially as it will be without Cahill in its next match, against Ghana on June 19.

Italy coach not making predictions

GROUP F PREVIEW

Italy vs. Paraguay

SOCCER Italy coach Marcello Lippi didn't make any bold predictions before the Azzurri's World Cup victory four years ago, and he wasn't about to change his ways before today's opener with Paraguay.

"I didn't tell you four years ago before Italy-Ghana that we were going to present you with (an) epic month," Lippi said yesterday, referring to the 2-0 win in 2006 that set the tone for the Azzurri's title run. "Great teams are born at big tournaments and grow game by game. Hopefully, we'll start off well tomorrow night and grow from there."

Lippi called the skepticism surrounding his aging squad "normal."

Italy has appeared confused in recent friendlies and Lippi still appears uncertain over his lineup, especially with key midfielder Andrea Pirlo out with an injured left calf.

"I can't deny that certain injuries have prevented me from carrying out a few experiments, but there's no doubt the squad is ready," the coach said.

FIFA World Cup

Asamoah Gyan of Ghana scores a penalty yesterday during a World Cup Group D match between Serbia and Ghana at Loftus Versfeld Stadium in Pretoria, South Africa. Ghana won 1-0.

Ghana player dedicates team's win to Africans

GROUP D RESULTS

Ghana 1 Serbia 0

SOCCER The first World Cup in Africa has its first African winner.

Asamoah Gyan scored on an 84th-minute penalty yesterday as Ghana stunned Serbia with a 1-0 victory in Group D. The win set off celebrations not only on the Loftus Versfeld pitch, but across all of Africa.

"That's what you're seeing," Ghana midfielder Stephen Appiah said. "This is the first time the World Cup is held in Africa, and all Africa is united."

After the final whistle, the Ghana players ran across the field in jubilation, some carrying national flags as they received applause from a crowd that pretty much made them the home team.

"Every African is behind us," Gyan said. "I salute all you guys. We win this match for you."

And for the folks back home. Large crowds gathered on major streets in Accra. Cars draped in the national flag swarmed the roads, and some drivers honked their horns while others sang.

"The Black Stars have started what the African countries in the tournament have not been able to do so far by winning a match," 15-year-old viewer Inusah Gariba said. "We have taken the lead and hopefully an African team — preferably Ghana — would come out tops in the final."

That's a long way off. In the opener for both teams, Zdravko Kuzmanovic needlessly handled a cross in the area, and then argued the call and the yellow card he received. Gyan drove the penalty kick high to the left for the only goal.

Previously, Gyan missed a series of headers. John Mensah and Gyan missed the target and Dede Ayew headed against the goalpost.

The fast-moving Ghanaians created more chances and could have been ahead by halftime.

Central defender Mensah headed a free kick wide of the far post and Gyan failed to reach a left wing cross by Kevin-Prince Boateng as the Serb defence struggled against well-directed balls into the middle.

Serbia's only real threat near the end was a shot by Milos Krasic that was brilliantly saved by Richard Kingson.

The Serbs had Aleksandar Lukovic sent off in the 74th minute for a second yellow card.

"For sure, this is a big blow for us. To start a World Cup with a defeat is a bad thing," Serbia coach Radomir Antic said. "We will use all our energy to be positive when preparing for the next game (against Germany Friday)."

The only African team to reach the second round at the 2006 World Cup, Ghana nearly got a second goal. Gyan almost made it 2-0 in injury time but hit the post after a burst down the left side.

"This is all I have worked for, and to be man of the match, it is fantastic," he said.

Is a sports team worth it?

A career in sports economics may change your view of the home team

RICHARD WOODBURY
for Metro Canada

With a strong desire to bring an NHL franchise to cities such as Winnipeg, Quebec City and Hamilton, there is often talk of the economic benefits the teams would bring to the communities. It's Brad Humphreys job to tell people the sad news.

"I've got to basically tell people all the time, 'Well, I'm sorry if these people have told you that a new hockey team in your community is going to be really beneficial economically.

There's no evidence to support that and it's a money-losing proposition for the local community and only a money-making proposition for the team owner and players," says the sports economist who teaches at the University of Alberta.

His 10 years of research indicates this is true for all sports.

Sports economics is a relatively new branch of economics, which takes economic principles and uses them to analyze issues in sports, such as the economic impact of hosting large sports events like the Olympics or the economic impact of having a professional sports team.

In Canada, there are only a handful of sports economists and becoming one is not a short process, with a PhD in economics being only a basic requirement.

When he tells people what he does, he says they're intrigued.

This is because "sports cuts across all dimensions of society and provides people with a common shared experience," he says.

Not every area of economics has its own section in the newspaper, he adds.

With the recent hosting of the 2010 Winter Olympics in Vancouver, a lot of talk was about the economic benefits it would bring to the city and province. The bad news is the Olympics have poor track records for this.

"It's almost certainly not beneficial for a local economy," says Humphreys. "It probably costs a lot more than whatever return you get back out of it."

The Olympics are expensive to host because of the specialized facilities and enormous security costs. Other problems can crop up as well, such as the Athletes Village fiasco in Vancouver.

"That blew up on them," he says, adding that taxpayers are now on the hook for the facility.

Humphreys is no longer the sports fan he once was

- 2012 IIHF World U20 Championship (2012 World Junior Hockey Championships) – Calgary and Edmonton
- 2013 Canada Summer Games – Sherbrooke, Que.
- 2015 Pan American Games – Toronto and this is because of his profession.

Humphreys used to be able to admire a ballpark for its structure and beauty, but "now when I go to a ballpark, all I can think about is, (how much money the city owes)."

OddJobs

Diane Peters

Metronews.ca/oddjobs

Michelle Limoges has a great day job. She's worked for the Alberta Research Council for 30 years. She runs special events for the Edmonton-based organization.

Limoges, 59, is planning to retire next year. Her other gig, meanwhile, will probably start taking up even more of her time.

Originally from Ontario, Limoges moved out west with her first husband in the late 1970s. They got a Doberman together and after the divorce, Limoges took the dog.

She met her second husband at a dog show; he was a policeman who was also a Doberman owner. When her show dog ran out the door one day and ended up at pound, she decided to do some obedience training.

She and the dog enjoyed the challenge. With her next pet, she began doing tracking.

Then, a tornado hit Edmonton in 1987. Observing how important the search and rescue efforts had been during the disaster, Limoges and a group of five other dog owners decided to try it. They got hold of the training standards for a group in British Columbia and began learning.

Every Sunday, they'd meet at a semi-demolished building in downtown Edmonton. They'd hide friends in the rubble and send the dogs to find them.

When the dogs found their targets, they'd get their favourite toys to play with as reward.

Along with the weekly group session, Limoges and her dog would go out many nights of the week, doing training exercises.

The group began calling itself the Search and Rescue Association of Alberta and became a non-profit organization. As the secretary for the organization, Limoges spends part of her evenings — after she's been out training — doing emails and writing newsletters or guidelines.

The group now has good relationships with local police and the RCMP and get invited out to real searches in the Edmonton area.

It's often to search for a senior with Alzheimer's. In recent years, Limoges and her group have been training for human remains recovery — her dog Parquetta has a knack for this.

At the search, the police hand out maps, and Limoges uses a compass and a GPS to orient herself. She and her dog take frequent breaks and can go for hours. Some searches are out of town; one lasted two days.

The group gets called about a dozen times a year.

Calls can come anytime. Limoges has an understanding with her employer and will leave if she's not in the middle of an important event.

"I've had lots of parties and things ruined. We do all this training, so when the call comes I say, sorry, I gotta go."

Diane Peters once hawked magic pens at the Canadian National Exhibition. She's now a writer and part-time journalism instructor.

This year we all need a vacation

TIME OFF With the official start of summer vacation season just days away, workers are planning to take time off and they are feeling more at ease about it.

According to CareerBuilder, more than half (56 per cent) of workers say they are more in need of a vacation in 2010 than they have been in past years. Additionally, 36 per cent say they feel more comfortable taking a vacation in 2010 than in 2009 due to an improving economy.

Many workers have vacations on their radar screens and are planning to be away from the office longer. Sixty-four per cent of workers say they have already taken or plan to take a vacation this year, up from 2009. Nearly one-third of workers say they won't be taking a vacation this year, with 21 per cent indicating they still can't afford it.

But, taking a vacation may not mean being completely unhooked from the office. Nearly half (49 per cent) of employers say they expect employees to check in with the office while they are away. One-quarter (25 per cent) of workers say they plan to contact the office at least once while on vacation, regardless of what they are working on.

"It is good news that workers' anxiety around taking vacation time appears to be lessening this year compared to last," said Rosemary Haefner, vice-president of human resources at CareerBuilder. "Utilizing time off to recharge batteries is even more important today as staffs have shrunk over the last 18 months."

Some vacation tips:
Get it on the calendar today: Today companies are operating with smaller staffs and having more than one person out of the office can negatively impact productivity. Be flexible and work with your co-workers to schedule vacation time before booking anything.

Train a co-worker: Before you leave, start recording important information, key contacts and any deadlines that will come up while you are gone and give it to a coworker who you have trained to fill in for you while you are gone. Remember to return the favor to the coworker, when they take vacation.
Schedule a set work time while on vacation: While it's best to leave the office at the office, if you must do work, set limits and boundaries for yourself and your co-workers. Don't let activities on vacation be interrupted by work.

With civil and family cases, Jesse James becoming frequent court figure

Jesse James is getting his day in court. Quite a few of them, actually.

The biker businessman and estranged husband of Sandra Bullock was a fixture in a Los Angeles courtroom last week, where he's involved in dueling lawsuits with an apparel manufacturer and distributor.

James, 41, is scheduled to testify and is expected to attend all the proceedings. The case, with millions of dollars on the line, is far from the only one involving James. It is, however, one that centres on his business rather than his personal life.

He is also embroiled in a custody dispute in neighbouring Orange County with his ex-wife, Janine Lindemulder. James had been expected to attend a hearing in that case this week, but it may be postponed.

There's also James' ongoing divorce from Bullock playing out in Austin, Texas. No proceedings have been scheduled in that case.

Bullock filed for divorce in April after several women claimed they had extramarital affairs with James. He apologized to Bullock, but he and his attorney have maintained the vast majority of the claims against James are untrue.

James is the owner of West Coast Choppers, a custom motorcycle shop in Long Beach, Calif. He also owns several other businesses and has cultivated his bike-making craftsmanship and tough-guy persona into several television shows, most recently Spike TV's Jesse James is a Dead Man.

The clothing dispute being heard in a downtown Los Angeles courtroom centres on a deal James and his companies made with Fortune Fashion Industries. The apparel company sued James in late 2007, claiming he had breached a contract that was worth millions of dollars to produce workwear.

James has denied the allegations and countersued Fortune Fashions, saying the company didn't disclose it didn't have experience creating that type of apparel.

He spent two days last week listening to jury selection, a rare exercise for a celebrity involved in a civil case. Often, stars in-vey to refrain from using the word "cheater" in his opening remarks, even though he intended it only in relations to James' business dealings.

Numerous celebrity reporters and photographers showed up Wednesday when jury selection began, but their numbers had dwindled by opening statements on Friday. The case is expected to last several weeks.

involved in civil matters only appear in court when they testify.

James, dressed in workboots or other workshop attire, has opted to sit behind his attorneys so far during proceedings. While he had to listen to some potential jurors opine on his personal life, the subject is off-limits during the trial.

A judge on Friday asked Fortune Fashions' attor-

Final Twilight chapter split into 2 movies

MOVIES Twilight fans will have twice as much to sink their teeth into for the saga's final chapter, with Breaking Dawn to be released as two movies.

Summit Entertainment, which is releasing the wildly popular vampire franchise based on Stephenie Meyer's books, said part one would come out Nov. 18, 2011. The script is being written now, with stars Kristen Stewart, Robert Pattinson and Taylor Lautner returning. Production is set to begin this fall.

Bill Condon, who won an Oscar for the screenplay for Gods and Monsters, will direct both movies. Condon also directed Dreamgirls and Kinsey and produced the 2009 Academy Awards ceremony with Hugh Jackman as host.

Mraz working to help end slavery in Ghana

PEOPLE While Shakira, the Black Eyed Peas and other top musicians are in Africa to help kick off the World Cup, singer Jason Mraz was on the continent for another reason: to help free slaves.

The 31-year-old Grammy winner was in Ghana this week with Free the Slaves, a non-profit organization whose mission is to "end slavery worldwide."

Mraz spent five days in the country, travelling with James Kofi Annan, a former child slave who used to work on fishing boats and had been enslaved for seven years.

Annan founded Challenging Heights, a school in Winneba where many of its students are former slaves. The children performed songs for Mraz.

The singer also travelled to a rescue shelter for slaves in the town of Atebubu and to Lake Volta, where many child slaves are working, said Peggy Callahan, the organization's co-founder and executive producer.

Callahan says she met Mraz through a mutual friend and she suggested he go to Ghana with her.

"The movement to end slavery really needs more voices, but they really need to be authentic voices, people who really do care about an issue," she said. "And Jason's one of those people, and he's willing to take the time to find out."

Mraz is the first celebrity to participate on the ground with the organization.

The pop singer is also busy working on the follow-up to his platinum-selling CD, 2008's We Sing. We Dance. We Swear Things. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lawyers question trial

The racial makeup of the jury and the conduct of the judge who oversaw O.J. Simpson's conviction have emerged as key issues in the former football star's appeal for the Nevada Supreme Court to overturn his conviction in a gunpoint Las Vegas hotel room heist.

"Mr. Simpson really believed he was recovering his own property," Simpson attorney Yale Galanter told a three-justice panel hearing oral arguments in Las Vegas on Friday. "Our theory of defence was never put before the jury."

Clark County District Attorney David Roger called the September 2008 trial contentious but fair, and the sentences just. He urged the justices to deny both appeals.

After Galanter characterized Simpson's conviction as prejudicial "payback" for his 1994 double-murder acquittal, justices Michael Cherry, Mark Gibbons and Nancy Saitta posed pointed questions about whether convicted co-defendant Clarence "C.J." Stewart received a fair trial alongside O.J. Simpson, centre, seen with his lawyers during his 2008 trial for kidnapping and armed robbery.

Simpson.

Both men were convicted of kidnapping, armed robbery, conspiracy and other crimes for what Simpson maintained was an attempt to retrieve family photos and mementoes. Four other men took plea deals and received probation after testifying for the prosecution.

Stewart's lawyer, Brent Bryson said a 2001 poll found 72 per cent of Americans believed O.J. Simpson was wrongly acquitted in the 1994 slayings of his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ron Goldman in Los Angeles.

Neither Simpson nor Stewart were in court for the oral appeals. Their attorneys previously lost a bid for their release from prison until their appeals are settled.

Simpson, an National Football League hall-of-famer, actor and advertising pitchman, is serving nine to 33 years at a state prison in the northern Nevada town of Lovelock.

Irving gives life to fiction

Young Danny from Last Night in Twisted River has a lot in common with the writer of the book. But John Irving would rather not share his protagonist's fate.

Irving spoke to Metro about his latest novel and his career as a writer.

Q When did you become a writer?
A There's an old essay that I wrote called Trying to save Piggy Sneed. It's about my grandmother and a garbage collector in the town where I grew up. He was killed in a fire on a farm. I worked in the fire department. It was a small town volunteer fire department. A lot of students in the town were volunteers because we thought it was exciting and a lot of fun.

One night the pig farm burned, and I found the body and had to take it out. That is about becoming a writer. The piece is about the desire to improve on that real story. The desire to somehow make the garbage man escape the fire. Or set a bigger fire that burns the whole town. The desire to make it either a better or a worse story. Because real-life stories don't have enough details, they don't make sense — they're just accidents.

John Irving gave the character Danny in his novel Last Night in Twisted River a similar background to his own.

Q Was there ever anything in your life you couldn't write about?
A No. In fact, I think that one of the reasons I am a fiction writer is that I've never been interested in memoirs.

Q Does it take time or can you write it right after it happens?
A It depends on what it is and how it has affected you. I think it's better to wait until it no longer agitates you.

Q Is the process Danny faces writing his novel similar to yours when writing Last Night in Twisted River?

A It's the third novel I've written where one of the main characters is a writer — the third of 12 — but in The World According to Garp and in A Widow for One Year I did not give Garp or Ruth my process as a writer. I did give that to Danny and I gave him my superficial biography — we were born at the same time, we go to the same schools, so that everything about Danny as writer, I faithfully modelled on my own history. But everything about Danny's life is not only not mine, but in some ways the opposite of mine. I feel that I've been very lucky and I purposely made Danny very unlucky.
